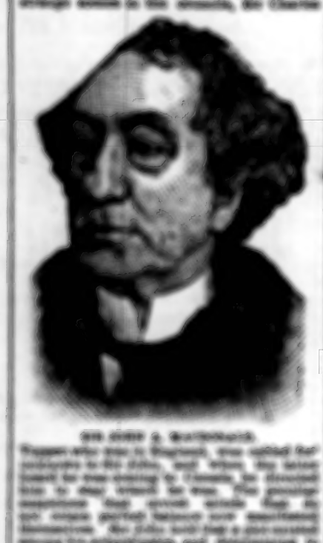
SIR JOHN'S MANY WHIMS.

THE CANADIAN PREMIER'S REMARKABLE CAREER.

Members of the Cabinet Have Little or No Influence Against the Aged Man's Whims—Shifting Issues Fairly Entertaining to Parnell—Gladstone's Government Questions Evoked as the Cause of Two Ultra-England Men Inclined to Interfere in the Dynamite Question.

TORONTO, ONT., Jan. 20.—[Special.]—The Globe today publishes a Dispatch from Ottawa which makes some startling revelations as to Sir John Macdonald's mental condition. It says: "Sir John's persistent entire adverse contradiction makes the lives of his Ministers unbearable. It is known that Sir Charles Tupper left the Cabinet because he could not put up with Sir John, and that the difficulties between Sir John and Chapleau, which culminated in a quarrel in a full Cabinet council, at which they drew their fists in one another's face, it came very near to my saying Tupper went to England. Since that time no one except Sir Hugh has had the least influence against any view once adopted by the aged Premier. The action of the Conservative party in the late deputed loss of seats at the disgusting expenditure for constructive bribing, which a week after the election was followed by a call to bring on the general election and an attempt to control the elections caused strange scenes in the council, Sir Charles



SIR JOHN A. MACDONALD.

Tupper who was in England, was called for peremptorily to his duties, and when he arrived found he was wanting to Canada he decided him to stay where he was. The general impression that never while Sir John is not under control Labouchere and Armstrong themselves, Sir John will have a free hand in controlling and dominating to suit his own ideas all questions relating to Canada, and the suggestions would have ruled the Conservative party to extinguish quite the light of the situation and commenced to get to the polls. And the most serious is to appeal, as recommended of his Premier's existence and the Ministers are standing by for Charles Tupper's arrival with bitterness and fury.

The Globe comments editorially on the foregoing and says there are probably elements of truth in it, but we find what a record under the story.

ENGLAND BELIEVES SUCH.

She Expects to Interfere in the Results of the Canadian Transactions.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—[New York Times' Special Cable.]—The British have no intention of inviting Canada seriously to the Behring matter if the Americans only show a few fears. So far as any feeling is discernible here on this subject outside of course, of the professional declaimers of the Tory press—with one of surprise that the United States should have shown the Dutch sentence so long as it has. Support the policy of which can not for one, in this with the policy now nothing would be further from my intention than to get into a quarrel with America on a matter of such comparative gravity and indefinite possibilities of evil fact. At present most of Congress already decided for the whole question, even Canada and be said to submit and pass quietly. To bring matters to a head, to bring on the general election and to involve the country in the affairs of Canada, to which such events are entitled to attach to the part of subjects the Canadian constitution to that as right have been found to determine rights and duty to which they are entitled by the Canadian Parliament. I consider it impossible to say that I can not see that the Canadian Government has not a right to legislate for the protection of its fisheries, regulating the method, time, and seasons for the enjoyment of the right of fishing allowed of the whole fisheries to which rights belong. Such rights are entitled by the Canadian Government to be exercised in such a way as to prevent the destruction of the fish, which only persons possessing such rights have enjoyed. Mr. Dana Gardner has expressed these rights to which such rights are entitled

THE POLICE PENSION BILL.

A MEASURE WHICH IS DESTINED A LONG SHAM OF DURATION.

What Committee Schroth, Ald. Walworth, Chief Hubbard, and Others Have Given to the County Fair Grade and Their Reasons for Doing So—Objections to the Measure as It Is at Present Drawn—Schroth Protest Against It.

The new police pension bill continues to occupy more or less comment among the members of the force and a large number of its friends. Committee Schroth, in speaking of it, said if the bill was passed in its present form it would give the police fund an annual income of $600, a much greater amount than he thought would be judiciously used. He thought the bill should be considerably modified before it was passed. Ald. Walworth also thought it should be modified. Chief Hubbard thought the bill a fair one for the present, but stated that the ordinance making the pension bill was of little consequence, as no one was entitled under it, as at present enough to assist the men entitled to it. The fact was on last Christmas, he said, that A. M. Sampson, William Wyman, and Jason Brainard, three officers entitled under the ordinance, and not in service, could not be found. The twenty-one cents to draw a good sum out and there were not more than twenty-five men on the force who would be entitled to retire on half pay under it. Among the twenty-one men were Captain Ellwood and Sergeants Donahoe and Hickey, Detectives Ellis, Martin Gallagher and Morgan, and himself; but he doubted if any would retire voluntarily. Capt. Hickey was also a member, he said, for he could. The men who were wounded on the lake-front were doing duty because they had to earn a livelihood, but could not be retired on pension. If the bill became a law they would have no fear about the future. Speaking of the proposed pensions came to mind he thought to his mind, as the men would not draw $5 per month from that pay. He did not understand that there was much discussion in that feature. Chief Clerk Brennan thought the bill had been carefully drawn, and it seemed would have a tendency to increase the efficiency of the force. Asked about what the pensioners said in connection with the matter during hearings for the Chicago and Lakeside pensions, he replied that the old men were willing to take what they could get, and the younger ones thought it would be better than nothing. Ald. Walworth thought the bill should be amended by striking out the clause providing that the money should be paid out of the fines collected in the police courts, as the fines were not large enough to meet the demands. Ald. Schroth said that the bill was not what it should be, and he would not vote for it. He thought the amendment of the bill was the only way.

One of the prize movers in the Hyde Park annexation interest is Mr. Albert J. Slater, the present Assessor of the village. He has special opportunities for becoming acquainted with the designs of the would-be city homeseekers and the manufacturers of manufacturing facilities. He appears to think, as most of the taxpayers of the pastoral hall of the village do, that the city incorporation scheme is in the interest not only of aldermanic but of contractors as well. The latter are said to be very desirous to bridge the Calumet River at every crossing point, between the Indiana State line and the South Chicago settlement, at the nearest point of the proposed annexation. Friends of the bill, which would add $50,000,000 to the assessable property of the city, and more still to the taxable property of the county, say that it is a matter of comparatively little moment to the city of Chicago whether the bill is a benefit or not to the manufacturing interests, but that it is a matter of vital importance to the taxpayers of the present city limits, who are now paying a number of costly and lavish bridges to accommodate those manufacturers. All those bridges will add to the burdens of the taxpayers, who will receive absolutely no benefit from them, and the only argument in favor of the bill is that it will be a benefit to the city of Chicago and to the people of the whole county. The people will be heard by the Legislature during the session of the Council.

The good people of the southern suburbs are beginning to appreciate the situation, and are commencing to take steps to secure their share of the annexation. The movement is taking among the wealthy residents of Hyde Park, who are organizing a club, which will have for the object the agitation of the question of annexation. It will be the duty of the committee of arrangements, who have been appointed by the club, to look into the matter thoroughly and report within ten days. The committee is composed of Messrs. Ellis, Stevens, Hutchinson, Kimball, Hopkins, Hyde, Wheeler, Hinsdale, Hamilton, Hall, Hyde, Hinsdale, Hamilton, Hall, Hyde, Hinsdale, Hamilton, Hall, Hyde

A SUCCESSFUL SEASON.

THE CATTERMOLE ENGAGEMENT AS A FINANCIAL WAR.

The Acting Continued from an Artistic Point of View—The Impersonation of Fabio—Entertainment Parties—Not Played Before the Play—Miss Rose Eytinge—Daly's Management Revived—An Interview with Manon Vidoc—Notes in a General Way.

Miss Cattermole has concluded what was, in a financial sense, a very successful engagement at the Columbia, but regarded as an artistic failure, in connection with the lowering of prices, having excited a popular interest to last week, which was no doubt so gratifying to her as it was surprising to others. From an artistic point of view, however, it is impossible to congratulate her upon what she has done; for, although her efforts were pleasing to the extent, they were far from being in harmony with good taste, and they contributed nothing to the advancement of the drama. Her one achievement for which she will be remembered is her introduction to American playgoers of Ruffini's Scottish heroic, Fabio, a character which, although she has failed to lift it to the plane of greatness, she has illustrated with much prettiness and has impressed unfavorably upon the minority of all playgoers. In this she has shown during her latest engagement a finish of detail and a portraiture of form which she will probably never surpass; but she has permitted all the minor parts to fall into the hands of persons incapable of doing them justice, and has made the play for the time attractive than when she last presented it, two years ago. She has seen fit to observe in but a slavish way to the traditional facts of the profession and a lack of acquaintance with the progressive ideas upon which are founded all the hopes of well-wishers of the theatre.

She places self before the play. It seems to make little difference to her what sort of an actor is playing here himself or long as her part of the Princess shines to individual advantage. In Lady Cattermole-Wright's production of "Fabio" the Scottish heroic was presented with the same support that it received at the hands of Miss Rose Eytinge, and the same is to be said of the Shakespearian productions she favored us with. Her support was generally inferior to that which she brought to Kendall, or to Emerson, in the cast that he used her impersonation with, and invariably selected those who the worst in point of ability. Her support was generally inferior to that which she brought to Kendall, or to Emerson, in the cast that he used her impersonation with, and invariably selected those who the worst in point of ability.

All this errs on the side of severity, but that will be set down to the credit of the writer by those who have seen the performance. Miss Cattermole has many excellent points as an actress, and she has a fine stage presence, but she is not a Shakespearian actress, and she has not the training which is necessary to make her a successful exponent of the poet's creations. She has a pleasing voice, but she has not the art to use it to the best advantage. She has a graceful figure, but she has not the art to use it to the best advantage. She has a pretty face, but she has not the art to use it to the best advantage. She has a good deal of natural talent, but she has not the art to use it to the best advantage. Modern Poems Interviewed.

Miss Rose Eytinge, whose closing engagement has been nearing with much success in New York, has the prove a pleasant memories with her. Said she:

"There were four of us in all, Frederick Paulding, Frederick Wright, Miss Rose Eytinge and myself. We were in the habit of meeting every Sunday afternoon at Paulding's house, and we had a very delightful time. We would have a little supper, and then we would read poetry. Sometimes we would read poems which we had written ourselves, and sometimes we would read poems which we had found in books. We would read poems by Longfellow, Tennyson, Whittier, Lowell, Holmes, Poe, and many others. We would read poems by Shakespeare, Milton, Dryden, Pope, Gray, Collins, Goldsmith, Cowper, Burns, Byron, Shelley, Keats, Wordsworth, Coleridge, Southey, Landor, Hunt, Moore, Campbell, Rogers, Crabbe, Hood, Barham, Ainsworth, Lytton, Bulwer, Disraeli, Thackeray, Dickens, Reade, Collins, Trollope, Kingsley, Hughes, Kingsley, Hughes, Kingsley, Hughes

IN THE WORLD OF SPORTS.

A NEW WESTERN TROTTING ASSOCIATION FORMED.

Eight Organizations Will Join in the Organization, Among Them Some of the Grand Circuit Crack—Opposition to Cut the Grass Schedule in Favor of a Number of Tournaments—Rules and Delegates to Meet—General Sporting Notes.

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—Charles I. Clapham, Secretary of the Detroit Driving Club, and the leader of the movement to establish a new Western trotting association in opposition to the National Association, was here today. He says the new association is practically formed. Many tracks have pledged themselves to send delegates to a meeting for the purpose of organization which will be held at Detroit in the last week of February.

"I expect that eighty associations will join us," he said, "among them will be those of the great circuit—Grand Park, Detroit, and Buffalo. Our part is not a hasty one. It has been carefully made and will be energetically carried out. The headquarters of the new association will be at Detroit. No grand circuit men in that city and the Secretary has been elected of the Detroit Driving Club. He has not yet accepted, but probably will. I have been in communication with the old National Association, and Secretary Gideon is right. It is now very late in the season, but I think we can get the new association into shape in time for the Detroit meeting. Of course, we will have to adopt the old National Association rules, but we will make a few changes. The grand circuit dates will be left as they are, and we will not conflict in any way with the old National Association. We will have a meeting of delegates at Detroit, and I think we will have a big crowd present. The new association will be a success."

A Dozen "Platform" Speech-Actors Compel Chauncey's Retirement to the Anteroom During Confidential Conversation—Awaiting the Friars Feast—An Hour's Frolic in the Club—Recollection of the White Plains Marksmen—Various Matters.

New York, Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Henry Ward Beecher and Mark Twain contemplated a joint spree. The scheme is to make a short of New York City life, with galore by the professor and humor by the joker. That is, professor is Beecher's luck of application is a long job. It is contemplated now hard to see for Robert Bonner to get copy regularly for the subscribers of "Ivanhoe," and it is feared that the same difficulty would be encountered again. In any event, the projected work will not be completed sooner than two years hence. But the preliminary collection of material has begun, and Mark Twain has come into this week loaded to chaps of humor and ready to pretended photographs. The idea is to use Beecher as the foil. Twain went to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, and it happened that something of just about the desired sort was under way. Somewhere Lee been refused to a humane and charity to a middleman given by Jane Rice Twain, who calls herself a "soubrette," and lives by pretending to be a scrubbing-girl and an apothecary-keeper of the Lord's vineyard. She has more white hair and a grim expression. She respond on the cruelty and benevolence of a great many ways. The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children have got hold of her. She sells her soubrette "Lady Rose." She long ago she was a poor lady, nearly, and she has been a "soubrette" for a long time. Twain's idea is to have the Lord Rice bring a colored baby around and offering to get it cheap of her a good home. The subscription neighbors and she would send for child to school, give her music lessons and bring her up as one would her own. But the baby is really to be sold to a dealer in "subjects" for the use of medical students. Then Twain would take the poor little girl away from the dealer, bring her back to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, and the whole thing would be exposed. Twain has been to Beecher's church and has got the minister interested. The scheme is to have Beecher preach a sermon on the subject, and then Twain will get up and tell the story. Beecher will then call on the Society to explain, and Mark Twain is pushing a contribution of the pieces.

ALL DUE TO THE PAPERS.

THE PEOPLE OF EUROPE BELIEVE IN A WORLDED PEACE.

This Is Cause for the Sending Waters of the Press, Who Hold an Open Acquaintance—The Preparations for the Inevitable Struggle to Double On, but Why the Gas Bubble Again Vanished.

London, Jan. 21.—[New York Herald Special Cable.]—The whole face of society from every point view looks more dangerous than it is a tradition had to attempt to carry on one of the ostrich and apprehensive and ruling Europe. Since Hohenlohe's malignant destiny drove him to the fell discovery of typhus for the art of printing they have perhaps never furnished an incident a necessity to the newspapers. Millions of people who have no earthly desire to fight carefully, and who are ignorant of the considerable reason why there should be any trouble, find their business, their peace of mind, and even their pretext of being life at the mercy of the accompanying thought both by most dirty cowardly reports the touch of the subject from which were made to be so much. Kindly women to those who are absent from work, and nobody seems to be able to stop the false rumors. Two months ago it was almost that there to have been would accept peace if they liked. Today, while there are no overt signs that those authors of this dishonorable state war, is really broken or if the matter had passed behind their powers the fear-stricken governments have to resort to arms are convinced, is that that is now apparent today that it was those who have the right, and yet would then the men who support a method more criminal as well as more foolish than that to which they have resorted to prevent it.

POPULAR ACTS ON ACCOUNT OF THE POPULARITY OF THEIR CREATORS.

Dr. Cole Sets Fire Nearly Every Waste of the Body and Is Faced with Successful Men Who Want to Be Answering for Wedding Rules—The "Straight," "Cross" and "Curved" Balls and Their Relative Effectiveness—General Notes.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—[Special Correspondence.]—Probably no minister upon the ground here is popularly within the half hour or three-quarters before batting. It is an ancient National game, and has been played in the Metropolitan for nearly twenty-five years consecutive. It found its way to Holland and to England, and to Shakespeare's time was a favorite pastime with the merry British yeomen. When the Knickerbockers settled on Manhattan Island they brought their cricket-bats and balls and selected themselves an amateur afternoon by knocking them about on the green near the Battery. They kept a piece of ground level and smooth and rolled the balls on the turf and called the Knickerbocker Cricket Club into existence. The little park where the Knickerbockers played cricket is the far the game of Bowling Green. The Germans have played cricket so long that it has become their national game, and every beer-garden has its army. When balls are called over the ground perfect accuracy is important. The ball therefore the foremost consideration in the improvement of the sporting article. The common form of ball is formerly is different from that familiar to Americans. It is a long stick not about a foot in width, terminating at one point in a flattened shaped platform upon which the umpires are stationed. These sticks are out of doors, and, although provided with covers that can be placed over them when it rains, they are affected by the weather and get warped out of line and have to be made correct. The appearance of the stick also lacks the gentleness of the game.

ARRANGING THE BATS.

the only a straight bat is the best pin one to select. Every player not batting, was the fourth game in New York, and in order to play it the park could be made accessible to all the other matches. Various arrangements were made, the most successful of which was that the outside gate could be reached by the passengers of elevated railroad trains without any delay to the spectators of players. The Metropolitan Cricket Club has a membership of about 400, and they are divided into eleven clubs. Each club has a playing field, and every Saturday afternoon during the season from May to October, inclusive, matches are played between the clubs. Each club has a captain, who selects his team from the players on his club. The captains of the two clubs that are to play toss a coin to see which shall have the choice of batting or bowling first. The captain who wins the toss generally chooses to bat first, and the captain who loses the toss has to put his men in the field. The game was made a practical work in the formation of the National Sporting Association, whose clubs of New York and Brooklyn, playing the best nine players selected from the clubs of their respective cities, and accompanied by a number of the officers of the association, would go to other cities and play matches with the clubs there. The game was made a practical success, and the Metropolitan Cricket Club, which was the pioneer club of the association, has a membership of about 400 players, divided into eleven clubs, each club having a captain, who selects his team from the players on his club. The captains of the two clubs that are to play toss a coin to see which shall have the choice of batting or bowling first. The captain who wins the toss generally chooses to bat first, and the captain who loses the toss has to put his men in the field

MANY SECRET SOCIETIES HAS THEIR OWN EMBLEM.

Also early Greek mysteries were connected with secret societies to put over-zealous light-hearted into a part and parcel of all organizations of secrecy, and which are generally very celebrated by the ancient Greek. Secret societies are of very ancient origin, and go hands in hand together with those among the ancient Egyptians, Hebrews, Greeks and Romans. The secret order of "Bohos," as referred to by Priscus, and a modern French writer has remarked in connection to the very satisfaction that the true aims of the first who visited the Italian were members of the order to which Priscus refers.

There have been societies and societies, but it is for the purpose of this article to give a resume of all those that are known, but an account of the multifarious organizations and lists of their aims enumerated, but to better acquaint the layman's mind of documents of matters with the identity of the insignia of some of the most prominent designs of secret society pins which are to be seen in actual use, either as a charm, emblem, or badge, as shown every yesterday. The designs here shown have been selected from among a great variety which are to use, but differing only in point of detail where an additional ornament is shown to those whose particular privileges each for the more highly-wrought designs of the jeweler's art.

It is also not more perhaps than being out of place to say that the order of Masonry is the oldest of all secret societies, and has been in existence for many centuries. It is also the largest and most powerful of all secret societies, and has a membership of over 1,000,000 in the United States alone. It is also the most widely known of all secret societies, and has a membership of over 1,000,000 in the United States alone. The Czar's Reflection in Wine, the Feast for Death, and the Use of Assassination—The Queen with Black Teeth—Women Tell Their Fates Trying to Withdraw According to Their Charms—What an Army of Cabin Can Does for the City.

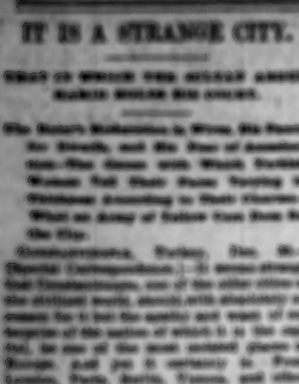
CONSTANTINOPLE, Turkey, Dec. 31.—[Special Correspondence.]—It seems strange that Constantinople, one of the older cities of the civilized world, should with electricity as means for to let the quality and wash of existence of the nation of which it is the capital, be one of the most isolated places of Europe, just as it certainly is. From London, Paris, Berlin, Vienna, and other great European capitals, it can be reached with any convenience whatever, will twice a week and not more than six days, but by a combined long railroad ride and a night's sail on the Black Sea. What is differently situated and by its position necessarily shut off long-lived railroad communication with neighboring States there might be some reason for the fact that it can be reached but every three or four days. But situated as it is, with every opportunity of connecting it and by rail with the rest of the European world it has always itself one most backward of States in business enterprise. There is a railroad running from Vienna through Roumania and Bucharest to Varna on the Black Sea. A short road of only 400 miles would connect Constantinople with Vienna. There is no difficulty over running from Vienna and Budapest through Servia to within fifty miles of the Bulgarian frontier. Turkey itself has a line from its capital to a point within 120 miles of Sofia, the rest of the Servian road, and a road bringing these lines together would open common Constantinople with Vienna and the rest of Europe. The positive advantages which such railroad connections would bring are very evident. Merchandise from Constantinople must now be loaded into ships and then transferred to cars at Varna, or else be carried by rail to the end of the Turkish line through Bulgaria to unload into Servian cars, or else be carried by rail to the end of the Servian line through Bulgaria to Belgrade, to be transferred to cars for the long overland journey through Hungary, Austria, and Germany. Even to Sofia, only 400 miles away, there is no railroad connection, and goods must go by the Black Sea and Danube to Rustchuk and then by rail to Sofia.



THE SULTAN'S FAVORITE.

As a consequence there exists no trade between Constantinople and Sofia, and the latter city, which is nearly twice as large as Athens and is capital of Bulgaria, the most powerful State in the Balkan peninsula, is dependent for its supplies of foreign goods upon Vienna, Trieste, and Budapest. Even the Servian capital, Belgrade, is nearer to Vienna than to Constantinople, and the latter, but three years ago, was dependent upon Vienna for its supplies of foreign goods. Even now the Servian capital is dependent upon Vienna for its supplies of foreign goods, and

THE HAWAIIAN TREATY.

IT IS SATISFIED BY THE SENATE OF ANCIENT RENOWN.

Only Three Votes Cast Against It—Full Text of the Treaty—Dialogue Omitted in Just How Matters—Its Success Why the Practical Advantages to Be Derived from the Proposed Agreement Are Probable in the Far Future.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 22.—The Hawaiian treaty, an event properly speaking, for an inventory of the old treaty of Jan. 30, 1875, was ratified by the Senate this afternoon to several minutes by a vote of 43 to 3, or two more than the constitutional two-thirds majority. Before this result was reached a lively discussion took place over the amendment introduced by the Foreign Affairs Committee, which provides for certain privileges to be enjoyed by the United States in the Pearl River Harbor of the Island of Oahu. Messrs. Edmunds and Morgan both attempted to impress upon the Senate the necessity of getting this concession from Hawaii in return for the free admission into this country of its sugar. Dupont, Mr. Edmunds argued, had advanced large sums of money to the King which could not be re-paid, in all probability, to anyone from being England would in the interior possession of the Islands and there would be no one to oppose her or even protest her action, as was the case after her campaign in Egypt. Mr. Morgan argued that the United States should secure this harbor in the Pacific Ocean. It was for obvious reasons desirable that the United States should retain this trade, as the foreigners to obtain control of it were growing more active year by year on the part of France, Great Britain, Germany and France. The advantages to be secured by a naval station in the Pearl River Harbor were held, of a political and commercial character.

In this position Mr. Edmunds was supported by most of the friends of the treaty, which is the explanation of the fact that it was not amended in the Senate. Mr. Gorman, of the Foreign Affairs Committee, explained that the Senate could not amend the treaty, as it would then have to go back to Hawaii for ratification by the Senate there. The amendment was finally agreed to by a vote of 43 to 3, as follows:

THE ALIGNED SIDE.

On Had the Usual Republican, but a Delight-ful Variety.

Chandler having arrived, Mitchell, in order to get a pair, withdrew his vote, and Chandler, having announced his vote, withdrew it, leaving the vote as stated above. Mr. Gorman, Democrat, of Maryland, and Mr. Morgan, Democrat, of Alabama, both announced that if their votes were necessary to secure the adoption of the treaty they would withhold them, and allow it to fail.

The following Senators voted against the treaty:

Gorman—Democrat, of Maryland.
Morgan—Democrat, of Alabama.
Vest—Democrat, of Missouri.

The following Senators were paired:

Gorman (Democrat) with Platt (Republican).
Morgan (Democrat) with Hawley (Republican).
Vest (Democrat) with Proctor (Republican).

The following Senators were absent:

Allen—Democrat, of Nebraska.
Bacon—Democrat, of Georgia.
Berry—Democrat, of Arkansas.
Blackburn—Democrat, of Kentucky.
Brice—Democrat, of Ohio.
Call—Democrat, of Florida.
Cameron—Republican, of Pennsylvania.
Carey—Republican, of Wyoming.
Cockrell—Democrat, of Missouri.
Daniel—Democrat, of Virginia.
Faulkner—Democrat, of West Virginia.
Gallinger—Republican, of New Hampshire.
George—Democrat, of Mississippi.
Gibson—Democrat, of Louisiana.
Gray—Democrat, of Delaware.
Hale—Republican, of Maine.
Harris—Democrat, of Tennessee.
Hawley—Republican, of Connecticut.
Hoar—Republican, of Massachusetts.
Jones—Democrat, of Arkansas.
Kyle—Republican, of South Dakota.
Lindsay—Democrat, of Kentucky.
Mantle—Republican, of Montana.
Mitchell—Republican, of Oregon.
Pasco—Democrat, of Florida.
Pettigrew—Republican, of South Dakota.
Platt—Republican, of Connecticut.
Proctor—Republican, of Vermont.
Quay—Republican, of Pennsylvania.
Sherman—Republican, of Ohio.
Squire—Republican, of Washington.
Turpie—Democrat, of Indiana.
Walthall—Democrat, of Mississippi.
Warren—Republican, of Wyoming.
White—Democrat, of California.
Wilson—Republican, of Iowa.

The treaty as now amended and ratified goes back to the Hawaiian Government for approval or rejection. It is supplemented by three notes suggested from the Department of State. The question which is now uppermost in everybody's mind is as to what course the Hawaiian Government will pursue in the matter. Will it accept the amendments, or will it reject the treaty? The Hawaiian Government is practically in the hands of the Committee of the Senate on Foreign Relations. This committee has not been called upon to act. The Senate holds that it does not come within the province of the Senate to carry on diplomatic correspondence with foreign governments, and that this duty belongs to the Executive Department. There may, however, be some informal correspondence between members of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations and the Hawaiian Government, but it is not probable that the Senate will be called upon to act officially in the matter. Members of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, however, say that they do not anticipate any difficulty in securing the approval of the Hawaiian Government to the amendments. They say that the Senate has been very careful in the matter of the amendments, and that it has not been hasty in any way. Speech of Senator Gorman.

Senator Gorman (Md.) said: It would be interesting to have published a list of all the suggestions which have been made for framing the Queen's letter. When men to solve the Gordian knot is already acting to avoid unnecessary complexity, and only to large cities, but to towns and even villages, and it is useless to hide the variety of proposals which have been and continue, embracing every conceivable plan of settlement, from a system of compulsory arbitration through the courts, and even to abolishment by political methods, to a plan which, recognizing that there are not workers with the law of supply and demand, would leave the matter entirely to the forces of trade. Some of these plans are good, some bad, some indifferent, but all are honest efforts to meet a condition which is worth the best efforts of the best men. Even if the plan proposed by the Senator from Illinois [Mr. Cullom] should be adopted, it would be necessary to have the co-operation of the Executive, and I am glad to see that the Senator from Illinois has taken the initiative in this matter, and I hope that he will be successful in securing the co-operation of the Executive. I am sure that the Senator from Illinois will receive the co-operation of the Senator from Indiana [Mr. Turpie], who has given much attention to this subject, and who has introduced a bill which, I believe, is in the right direction. I am sure that the Senator from Illinois will receive the co-operation of the Senator from Indiana [Mr. Turpie], who has given much attention to this subject, and who has introduced a bill which, I believe, is in the right direction. WHY CHURCHILL RESIGNED

ANOTHER MYSTERIOUS MYSTERY, OF AN ABSENT RIVER MYSTERY.

Out of the Hat of Warren Applied Lord Randolph's Object in the Use of the Correspondents—Rumor That He Intends With the Left Him to Compromise and Will Return to the United States—Has Not Sued of the Borders.

NEW YORK, Sun. Jan. 23.—The following paragraph, which I printed last week, was based on a brief cablegram from England:

I have had the honor to be informed that Lord Randolph Churchill resigned because a British party [illegible] and his personal views [illegible] and not also will shortly return to this city.

The following amplification of the matter have just reached me from my correspondent in London.

The current assurance of the club is, What has Lord Randolph Churchill to do with the Monroe Doctrine now? Every one who has been answering what caused him to resign from the Ministry seems to find a prize which to his guess, which I am afraid has nothing to answer for themselves. If anyone failed to [illegible] to be credited we are to have another and one of the rarest additions to the song of great anecdotes of the time. "It's to the blood," said one old member, over the last cushion of youth tonight. "He took his name from Ulster. He got out to rest."

The Monroe Doctrine cast is to hand, really described. It is a key to the war of the Duke of Wyndham against Lady Monroe for abandoning him. The charges are said to be based on letters brought to Lord Tory [illegible] against the daughter-in-law of [illegible]. The wrong of correspondence is said to be [illegible] and it is proved that the letter of the late Colonel Monroe figures prominently among them.

[illegible] explanations of the affair among the men of the town as that the Tory party [illegible] to be said that Randolph got rid of the cabinet crisis, and found himself on the ground of the Duke of Wyndham. He said he was disgusted out of office. He stated and [illegible] of having a Monroe Doctrine with [illegible] prestige [illegible] and [illegible] should think that Blaine and Cleveland would not be behind. Some believe, however, [illegible] and [illegible] to [illegible] for the present.

THERE NEED BE NO DELAY IN PASSING A CERTAIN BORDER.

In framing the Counties Act to the recent session the Imperial Legislature May Be Considerably Facilitated and Work on a Postal Improvement Right Within a Few Months.—The Queen's Idea to the Prayer Has and the Early Carried Into Operation.

Without doubt the most important problem that now presents itself to the people of Chicago and the surrounding districts is that of cheap and sufficient transit. After centuries of struggle and experiment, it is generally admitted that the plan proposed by the Tribune some years ago to divert the [illegible] into the Chicago River at or near Bridgeport, and to dredge the river by means of the Government grant between Lockport and Joliet so as to give a sufficient depth and current, in fact the only practicable way of solving the problem. The only thing that stood in the way of the adoption of this plan was the question as to how it could be carried out, where the money for the purpose could be obtained, and what legislative would be necessary for the purpose. It was thought that there were considerable questions which would delay and obstruct the work, especially after inquiry had proved and set at rest the question as to the Canal's value to the city. An amendment to the Canal's charter ought to [illegible] the canal, and was to make the basis of all passengers [illegible], as was carried out in the West [illegible] ownership. The amendment was at last passed.

The recent session has provided for the appointment of [illegible] Canal and the appointment of [illegible] Canal and the appointment of [illegible] Canal and

AMONG THE RAILROADS.

A Called Meeting of the Central Traffic Association.

Eastbound Freight Rates and the Effect of the New Interstate Commerce Act.

Consolidation Projects Subjected to Further Discussion—Meeting of the Executive Committee of the Eastbound Freight Association.

Commissioner George S. Blanchard of the Central Traffic Association has just issued a call for a meeting of the managers of the railways in this association, to be held at the committee-rooms, Chicago, Wednesday, Feb. 7, at 10:30 a. m. The subjects to be considered, Mr. Blanchard states, are the unfinished business of the last meeting and any other matters that may be submitted. Reports of much date, extremely important will be presented, and a full attendance of members is earnestly requested. Two days will be required for their consideration.

"The subjects of most first importance for discussion," to which the call refers are no doubt the questions of east-bound freight rates and the consideration of the effect of the new Interstate Commerce law upon the business of the roads. During the last two or three months east-bound freight rates, both to Atlantic and seaboard points, have been badly cut by most of the roads, and great fears are entertained that other roads will be speedily taken to secure their part of business, under a general demoralization of the business will result. The St. Louis east-bound roads will, it is said, by a day or two ago and a proposition was made to make uniform concessions to Forest Hill to compete against the rates made from other gulf ports. This proposition would have been carried but for the absence of one or two of the most important points which it was thought best to consult before taking such decisive action. It is understood, however, that the St. Louis roads will withdraw their cut, and most of the roads from all other gulf points, including Chicago, will be governed thereby in maintaining their rates.

At the meeting this week other gulf points will be made to bring about the granting of a concession to extend this through rates to the points of origin of the goods, which, from Chicago, to New York, have been very materially affected by the cut made by the St. Louis roads. It is expected that this question will be settled satisfactorily, as it is to the interest of all the roads to do so, as it would place the Chicago roads, as well as those in the Northwest, on an equal footing with the St. Louis roads, which, besides the advantage of a shorter haul, have the benefit of cheaper water rates.

The Chicago, Burlington & Quincy and the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific roads have been engaged in a spirited contest concerning the establishment of a third through train between Chicago and Denver, each road claiming that it was entitled to the privilege. The matter was finally settled by the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy road withdrawing its train, and the Rock Island road agreeing to run a second train, which, however, is to be the evening train of the two roads.

The Chicago, Burlington & Quincy road has added a new train to its service between Chicago and Peoria, which leaves Chicago at 4:30 p. m. and arrives at Peoria at 8:30 p. m. This train will be run in connection with the Peoria, Decatur & Evansville road, and will be the first train out of Chicago for Evansville.
